As fas as I can see you should have access through me, but I will take a look on this when I get to my main PC with a big display. It looks like your parent profiles are cut loose, - could you try to locate them for me?

I wish I could help you, but instead I have a question. Do you have any information on the Ann Thomas who md Marmaduke (some say he went by 'Thomas') Constable (1572-1632)? People say they had a dau Thomasine who md my ancestor Wm Lumpkin, but I am searching for some kind of documentation of the connection before I add the Constable line to my tree. For generations we have had no evidence of our family before Jacob Lumpkin in VA (1644-1708), and I would love to determine our English forebears. Thank you for any help on this question or anything else you may know relevant to our line. I would love an answer to beachhouse2003@gmail.com if possible.

I must be missing something. I don't see a source at that link, Jacqueli.

It says, "She was not among those who presented her mother's will for probate but this may mean only that she was already out of the country. Gibbon stated that Anna Constable was the wife of (Col.) Richard Lee."

There is no entry for Gibbon in the table of sources at the end of the page.

Perhaps the source for her parents was accidentally left out, but could be provided?

Francis Constable died 1st. August 1647 of the plague and was buried the following day from St. Margaret, Westminster, while his widow was buried 4 August 1647. These registers are published and it should be noted that "Mr." is misread "Mrs." in his burial entry. Their only remaining son Robert was carried off by the plague the same month (buried 28 August) and it was after his death that the will of Alice Constable was filed for probate.

I tried to reply to this earlier but it didn't go through.

The only citations I can find on-line for your correction go back to your website, Jacqueli. Can you point us to any neutral primary sources? Everything else I can find related to Ms. Constable has the information that's already on her Geni profile, so for us to change it would require irrefutable evidence we can see for certain. I'd like to help you if there is an error, so any documentation you can provide would be great.

Ashley - I think there is a mis-understanding - nothing needs to be changed - the first message was over a year ago - thank you though. I believe it was all worked on and sorted out a while ago.

This website questions the evidence for Anne's parents:

http://www.enotes.com/topic/Francis_Constable#Family

"An interesting claim is made in many genealogies that one of Francis's daughters, Anne Constable, married Richard I Lee, an important figure in the colony of Virginia[9], who was the ancestor of Confederate General, Robert E. Lee[10]. This claim, however, cannot be substantiated. All that is known from documents of the period is that Richard I Lee's wife's name was Anne. In trying to substantiate that Anne was the daughter of Francis Constable, evidence is given that a sister and a brother-in-law supposedly settled in Virginia after Francis Constable and his wife Alice died in 1647, and that both the sister and brother-in-law were associated with Richard I Lee. The evidence, however, does not stand up to investigation."

This is an excerpt. There is a longer discussion of the evidence at the site.

It appears that we need more work on this line to answer the objections raised there.

Specifically, is there evidence the author has missed? If so, we need to take that evidence and develop it into a narrative that explains the relevance and evaluates the quality of the sources. Not an easy project, but surely worthwhile for such an important line!

Notes for ANNE CONSTABLE

Paul C. Nagal, in The Lees of Virginia, states that Anne Constable, the wife of the immigrant Richard Lee I, had been a ward of Adam Thoroughgood's brother, Sir John Thoroughgood. Quoting Nagal - Of incalculable importance to his progress was Richard's fortunate marriage. When the young man accompanied Governor Wyatt to Jamestown, the official household also included a young woman, Anne Constable, whose identity later became lost to the family record. Even her name was unknown for two hundred years. Now, thanks particularly to the work of David Halle, genealogist for the Society of the Lees of Virginia, we know that Anne was baptized in London during 1622 and that she was one of the many daughters born to Francis Constable.

Perhaps because of her father's connections, Anne became a ward of Sir John Thoroughgood, a personal attendant upon King Charles I. This affiliation would have made it easy for her to know the family of Sir Francis Wyatt and to accompany them to North America. She too sailed to America on the same ship as her husband to be. They were married in 1641 at Jamestown, Virginia. Anne's background and early associations meant that Richard Lee moved socially upward when she took him as husband.

The family settled in the very northern part of the state, very close to Maryland. Here they raised ten children from 1643 through 1656. He becomes Colonel Richard Lee I after he names his second boy Richard, who in turn becomes Richard Lee II. In 1664, Richard I dies at the age of 46 at his last home in Dividing Creek, Northumberland County, Virginia. Anne lives on to 1706 and dies at home where they are both buried. In 1656, the last child of Richard I and Anne is born, a boy they name Charles Lee. Charles is only eight years old when his father dies, but he still has his mother, and older brothers Richard Lee II and Hancock Lee to help raise him.

compiled by Emma Lee Bettis

LEE GENEALOGY

An honorable ancestry is a gift of God, and should be regarded as such by those who possess it. Position and learning are desirable gifts. Possession of wealth cannot make an ancestry "honorable", unless the rights were gained honorably.

Among the "Virginia Lee" ancestors were men of learning and high position. They were bishops of the Church of England, the lords chief justices of England; the sheriffs of Shropshire and London.

The name Lee occurs very early in the list of the landed gentry of England, and of the Lord Mayors and Sheriffs of the counties.

The name often appears as "de Lee" before the reign of King Henry VI. In that reign the "de" before names began to be left off, and "Knight" and "Squire" took its place.

The Lees of England were men of large wealth, as well as distinction. Nowhere is it recorded that they ever wronged man or woman. They won their worldly goods honorably, used them beneficently, and laid them down cheerfully when duty demanded the sacrifice, and when it pleased God to call them out of this world.

Col. Richard Lee¹, born at Nordley Regis, England in 1613, was the first of this Lee family to settle in Virginia in 1640.

Note: The numerals to the right of each name indicate the generations descended from Col. Richard Lee¹, who came to Virginia in 1640.

Some of the notable descendants of Col. Richard Lee¹ in Virginia were Richard Henry Lee, and his brother, Francis Lightfoot Lee, both Signers of the Declaration of Independence; President Zachary Taylor; Light Horse Harry Lee, of Revolutionary War fame, and Governor of Virginia; and his son, General Robert Edward Lee, of the Confederate States of America. Down through the years there have been many doctors, lawyers, Judges and ministers; besides many substantial men and women.

General Robert Edward Lee descended from the eldest son, Richard Lee, II². Col. Thomas Lee³, son of Richard Lee II², built the fine brick house called "Stratford", which is restored today as it was originally, and a show place of Westmoreland County, Virginia. General Robert Edward Lee was born at "Stratford" in 1807. The house called "Ditchley", is a brick house containing twenty rooms, built by Hancock Lee² and belongs to his descendants; it is also restored. "Cobb's Hall", also a brick house with twenty rooms, in Northumberland County, Virginia, belongs to some descendants of Charles Lee², the youngest son.

Lilly (Quarles) Lee, mother of Emma Lee Bettis (compiler of this book), was twice of the Richard Lee, II² family; and Dr. John Andrew Lee, the father of Emma Lee Bettis, was descended from Charles Lee², the youngest son of Col. Richard Lee¹ and wife Anne (Constable) Lee.

LEE FAMILY OF SHROPSHIRE, ENGLAND 1100 AD to 1640 AD IN VIRGINIA

1. Hugo de Lee, 1100 AD
2. Reginaldus de Lee, Sheriff of Shropshire, England, 1201. He was the first of record to use the coat of arms of the Shropshire Lee family.
3. Sir John de Lee.
4. Sir Thomas de la Lee, wife Petronella, daughter of Sir Thomas Corbet.
3. Reginaldus de la Lee.
6. John de la Lee, wife Matilda Erdington.
7. John de la Lee.
8. Roger de la Lee, wife Margaret Astley, daughter of Sir Thomas Astley.
9. John de Lee, wife Jacosa Packington.
10. Roger de Lee, wife Johanna Burnell, daughter of Sir Edward Burnell.

11. Robert de Lee, wife Petronella de Lee, daughter of Roger and Johanna de Lee.
12. Radulphus de Lee, wife Isabella Ridley.
13. Richardus de Lee, wife Margaret Spenchose, daughter of Fulke Spenchose.
14. Fulke de Lee, wife Elizabeth Leighton.
15. Thomas de Lee, wife Jane, daughter of Sir Robert de Corbet de Morton.
16. Sir Humphrey de Lee, wife Margaret de Corbet.
17. Sir John de Lee de Nordley, wife Elizabeth Corbin.
18. Sir Thomas de Lee de Nordley, wife Johanna Morton.
19. Sir Humphrey Lee of Coton Hall, wife Katherine Blount (Royal line).
20. Sir John Lee of Coton Hall, wife Joyce Romney, issue eight sons; the 6th son:
21. Richard Lee or Nordley Regis, Shropshire, England, wife Elizabeth Bandy.
22. Col. Richard Lee¹, born 1613, came to Virginia 1640, wife Anne Constable.

This is the end of the Shropshire Lee pedigree, extracted from the College of Arms by Mr. Charles Townley, York; and John Pomfret, Rouge Croix, August 1850. This is one of the longest and most complete pedigrees in the world.

The basis for this Lee history, in detail, is found in "Lee of Virginia", by Edmund Jennings Lee (Philadelphia, 1894); also by (Mrs. M. P.) Emma Lee Bettis, genealogist and historian, who has done twenty years of Lee research. And the Virginia Magazine of History, January, 1954 says:

P-3, "Now it is possible to write with assurance, regarding Col. Richard Lee's¹ parentage and to trace his career after 1640. (The earliest of the Lee's of Shropshire, known to us was Hugo de Lee in 1100.) Reginaldus de Lee, the Norman, flourished about the year 1201; he was Sheriff, and does not occur after 1210. He appears to have been the first to bear the generic Lee arms: gules, a fess chequy or and azure, between ten billets argent, four in chief and three, two, one in base.

The motto: "Ne Incautus Futuri".

Translated: "Not incautious of the future".

P-4. Through successive generations, the descendants of Reginaldus de Lee prospered, achieving knighthood's, marrying well, acquiring additional manors. Two sons of the house, both named Roger de Lee, marrying two notable heiresses: Roger de la Lee, son of Sir John Lee of Roden and Stanton, married Margaret Astley, daughter of Sir Thomas Astley of Coton and Nordley Regis. Roger de Lee, son of John de Lee of Lee and Pimhill, married Johanna Burnell; their only daughter, Petronella Lee, married her cousin, Robert de Lee, the elder son of Roger de la Lee and Margaret Astley, This marriage united all the Lee estates in Shropshire, except Coton and Nordley Regis, which passed to Robert's younger brother, John Lee."

From John Lee are descended the Lee's of Coton.

"Coton Hall" is the Manor of Nordley Regis in the Parish of Alveley at the southeastern extremity of Shropshire; it is no ordinary English country house. The site is on a high hill overlooking the Severn Valley and has been of special importance since pre-Roman times.

P-6. Coton and Nordley Regis became the inheritance of Margaret Astley, who married Roger Lee.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth I, lived Sir Humphrey Lee of "Coton Hall" and wife Katherine Blount (of the Baronial Blount family).

Sir Humphrey Lee and Katherine's only son, Sir John Lee, born 1530; he succeeded to the Manor of Nordley Regis. He married Joyce Romney in 1553, issue eight sons: Thomas; William; Edward; Gilbert; Jasper; Richard; Ferdinand; and Josias Lee.

The sixth son, Richard Lee, born 1563, was the father of Richard Lee¹, the emigrant to Virginia in 1640. Richard Lee¹, the emigrant to Virginia, was unquestionably descended from the ancient Shropshire family of Lee's; for he used the generic arms of the Lees of Shropshire; and a contemporary officer of the College of Arms attested his right to do so; as quoted in "Lee of Virginia", page 40.

P-7. One certain example of Richard Lee's¹ use of the armorial bearings was the inscription and generic arms on a silver tankard, which his son, John Lee² presented to Queen's College, Oxford, England; then the well known wood carving of "Cobb's Hall", which once adorned the emigrant's home on Dividing Creek, Northumberland County, Virginia; also the Lee arms on a communion cup presented to Lee Parish, Wicommico, Virginia by Hancock Lee².

P-10. The parents of Richard Lee¹, the emigrant, were Richard Lee, born at "Coton Hall" in 1563 and was a resident of Alveley Parish in 1599, when he married there to Elizabeth Bendy; was still living in 1621. In 1599 he acquired the estates of Stratford Langton in Essex, near London, which Richard Lee¹, the emigrant, later possessed.

It has been supposed that the emigrant, Richard Lee¹ was born in 1600, because of the date of his parent's marriage in 1599; a more likely date is 1613. This is the proven birth date of a Richard Lee, which may have been the emigrant. The date 1613 is more consistent with his appearance in a portrait painted in 1661, which is of a man forty-eight, rather than of a man sixty-one. We conclude that Richard Lee¹, the emigrant, was born at Nordley Regis in 1613.

P-12. Richard Lee's¹ education must have included legal studies. It is notable that Richard Lee went to Virginia to be Clerk of the Quarter Court, and three years later he was appointed Attorney General of Virginia.

P-14. Sir Francis Wyatt, the first Royal Governor of Virginia; on his second term, he brought with him, as a member of his household a young lady named Anne Constable. She and Richard Lee¹ may have become inter-ested in each other during the long voyage to Virginia; certainly they met frequently in the society at Jamestown. In 1640/41 they were married; presumably in the new brick church at Jamestown, with the Governor giving the bride away. Note: It is possible that Ann's mother was a Hancock, since she named her seventh son, Hancock Lee².

P-22. Richard Lee¹ served as Sheriff of York County, Virginia in 1646, as Burgess for York County in 1647. Richard Kemp died in 1649, so Richard Lee¹ succeeded him as Secretary of State; thus at the age of thirty-six he became Sir William Berkley's principal lieutenant on the eve of a new crisis in the affairs of Virginia.

P-25. It was during this crisis that Richard Lee¹ was admitted to the "Council" by Sir William Berkley's appointment. He was granted the title of Colonel at this time.

P-23. Richard Lee¹ was sent by Sir William Berkley to perform an official duty with King Charles II. Richard Lee¹ found the King at Breda in the Netherlands. This was a profitable voyage for Richard Lee¹; he freighted a Dutch ship on his own account, and brought back a return cargo to Virginia, including a number of immigrants; thirty-eight of whom were unable to pay their own passage. Their services were his for a term of years, and their headrights were the basis for three new land grants, which he obtained in 1651: these grants were for 500 acres adjoining War Captain's Neck; 500 acres on Poropotank Creek in Northumberland County, Virginia. See: Land Patent Book #2, pp. 314-338, and Book #4. pp. 211, 375.

P-26. By 1650 Richard Lee¹ had 2400 acres in the new County of Gloucester. During 1653 Richard Lee¹ patented 300 acres on the York River side of Tendall's Neck and another 300 acres on the south side of the Rappahannock at the head of the south branch of Matchepungo.

Of more interest than Richard's land transactions in 1653 was the "store", a commercial warehouse; the site of considerable export/import business.

P-28. From 1652 Richard Lee¹ was owner of a ship, trading between England and Virginia.

P-27. In the Spring of 1653 Richard Lee and Anne (Constable) Lee's family included six sons: John², now aged eleven; Richard II² was six Francis², four; Willam², two; and a twin's name unknown to us was drowned; and the infant Hancock Lee². During the year twin daughters were born at their home, Paradise; their names were Elizabeth² and Ann², born between Hancock's² birth, September 1652, and their mother's departure for England in February 1654. Charles Lee², the youngest child of Richard Lee¹ and Anne (Constable) Lee, was born May 21, 1656 at Dividing Creek, Northumberland County, Virginia. Richard Lee¹ took out a patent for 4000 acres in November 1661. One tract of 1000 acres was the site of Mount Vernon; another 2000 acres was on the south shore of Hunting Creek, opposite to the site of Alexandria.

P-44. The complete text of Richard Lee's¹ will is in "Lee of Virginia", by E. J. Lee, pp. 61-64, "I, Colonel Richard Lee¹ of Virginia and lately of Stratford Langton in the County of Essex, England." So began the last will of Richard Lee¹, signed in England, February 6, 1664 on the eve of a new voyage to Virginia. He left strict instructions, that if he did not survive the voyage, his executors were to sell the property at Stratford send his family to Virginia with all convenient speed."

P-45. Col. Richard Lee¹, accompanied by his son, John Lee², probably sailed from England immediately after signing his will. He arrived at Dividing Creek a dying man. At the April Session of Northumberland County, Virginia Court 1664 John Lee² obtained an order for headrights due his deceased father.

Col. Richard Lee¹ was only fifty-one, and was at the height of his career when death overtook him. Richard Lee's¹ will was probated in London in January 1665. His executors were: Thomas Griffith and John Lockey, London merchants, and his eldest sons, John Lee² and Richard Lee II².

P-45. John Lee² was twenty-two when his father died; he was left the Macho-doc plantation of 2000 acres, with ten English servants, and ten negroes; also three islands in Chesapeake Bay. As heir-at-law he also inherited 4700 additional acres. John Lee² served as Militia Captain, Justice, Sheriff, and Burgess for Westmoreland County, Virginia. John Lee² died unmarried 1673 at the age of thirty-one.

Richard Lee II² was eighteen when his father died 1664; he inherited Paradise plantation of 1350 acres. After his graduation from Oxford he went there to live, but at John Lee's² death, Richard Lee II² inherited John's² lands, and moved to Machodoc; there he married Letitia Corbin, the daughter of his neighbor, the Councilor, Henry Corbin, Francis Lee² was sixteen in 1664; the 750 acre plantation on York River was left to him. Francis Lee² became a London merchant.

P-47. The younger children: William Lee² was fourteen years of age when his father, Col. Richard Lee¹ died in 1664; Hancock Lee² was twelve; Betsey² (who later married Leonard Howison) and Ann² (who became the wife of Thomas Youell) were eleven in 1664; Charles Lee², the youngest child, was eight in 1664 when his father died.

These five children lived with their mother, Anne (Constable) Lee, who was left their home on Dividing Creek with all of its lands, also five negroes "during her widowhood and no longer", by her husband's will. He well knew that she would soon be remarried.

In September 1666 her new husband, Edmund Lister, brought suit against John Lee² regarding the execution of Col. Richard Lee's¹ will.

The Dividing Creek lands were eventually divided among the three younger sons. William Lee² was the first to leave his mother's home: he received 500 acres the Bishop's Neck tract, and the purchased land in Maryland.

Hancock Lee² received 800 acres, which became the "Ditchley" estate. Charles Lee², the youngest, inherited the old homestead of 600 acres, which became the "Cobb's Hall" estate. The Stratford estate in Essex County, England was sold and the proceeds were divided between the two daughters, Betsey Lee², and Ann Lee².

"Lee of Virginia." Second Generation, "Cobb's Hall" Line.

P-558. Charles Lee², born on May 21, 1656 at Dividing Creek, Northumberland County, Virginia; son of Col. Richard Lee and Anne (Constable) Lee. Charles Lee² was a Captain in the Colonial Militia, Northumberland County, Virginia; Justice 1687 - 1699. He died December 17, 1701. Charles Lee² married Elizabeth Medstand in 1676 (daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth(Lawson) Medstand of Lancaster County, Virginia.)

Issue: 2 sons and 2 daughters:

1. Thomas Lee³, eldest son, born 1679 at "Cobbs Hall", Northumberland County, Virginia; married Elizabeth Keene of Maryland.
2. Elizabeth Lee³, born 1682, married her cousin, John Howison.
3. Major Charles Lee II³, born 1684, married Elizabeth Pinckard.
4. Leeanna Lee³, born 1689, married William Jones.

P-561. "The will of the first Charles Lee² (son of Col. Richard¹ and Anne Lee), written July 13, 1700; after giving his soul to God and a Christian burial, and all debts are paid. First, I give to my son, Thomas Lee³, all my land on Rappahannock River side, had by my wife, also 500 acres left to me by Walter Jenkins, one feather bed and a child's part of my negroes, cattle and household stuff, unto Thomas Lee³ and his heirs forever.

I had a chance today to do some poking around. I found what I think is the answer. It's not fleshed out as much as I'd like, but it should provide some clues to further research if anyone is interested.

The wife of Richard Lee, the immigrant, was Anne. Her maiden name was unknown, until it was discovered by research commissioned by the Society of the Lees of Virginia. Most internet sources are content to quote (or cite or rely on) Paul C. Nagel, The Lees of Virginia: Seven generations of an American family (Oxford University Press US, 1991), 9:

“Of incalculable importance to his progress was Richard's fortunate marriage. When the young man accompanied Governor Wyatt to Jamestown, the official household also included a young woman, Anne Constable, whose identity later became lost to the family record. Even her name was unknown for two hundred years. Now, thanks particularly to the work of David Halle, genealogist for the Society of the Lees of Virginia, we know that Anne was baptized in London during 1622 and that she was one of the daughters born to Francis Constable.”

Nagel didn't cite a more specific source. However, a picture emerges on various newsgroups and on the Society's website: David Halle commissioned research on the early Lees from the College of Arms in London. As it happens, the College of Arms owns John Gibbon's copy of John Smith's Generall Historie of Virginia (1624). Gibbon visited Richard and Anne Lee in Virginia in 1659-60. He later became a pursuivant at the College of Arms. He made many marginal notes (about 1710?) in his copy of Smith's book, including a note that Anne Lee was the daughter of Francis Constable. When he died, he left his papers to the College. The research by Halle uncovered Gibbon's marginalia, and proved the identity of Richard Lee's wife.

Gibbon's relevant note says “Cognomen Dominae Lei fuit Constable [the surname of Lee's wife was Constable], but shee came into Virginia with Sir Francis Wiat and had lived with Sir John Thorowgood, one of the Gentlemen pensioners.” According to the Society, photostats of Gibbon's marginalia are in the Virginia Historical Society.

There are two common objections to this source. First, that Gibbon was elderly and writing from memory so he might have been wrong.

Secondly, that Gibbon doesn't say (in this quote) that Anne's father was Francis Constable. And, Halle and Nagel have not sufficiently proved that the Anne baptized in 1622 was the woman who married Richard Lee.

But, those are questions for another day.

Good afternoon Jacqueli,

I descend from Anne's sister Sarah who married Anthony Savage. I was curious about the lineage of Anne going back to William Constable. I don't follow the link to Humphrey VI Bohun? Perhaps a dumb question. Sorry and thank you. John

You can read an Ahnentafel that I posted a few years ago on my website:

http://www.leesofvirginia.org/Anne_Constable.html - one day I will update with a cleaner, easier to follow version.

I am happy to meet you cousin - it is a shame that the Constable family was so often forgotten in the history of the Lee family. They were a great family. As you are probably aware, recent DNA testing has confirmed the Francis Constable line.

Regarding John Thoroughgood (Thorowgood), per Shaw's Knights there seem to have been two of him, both knighted, three years apart.

The first John Thorowgood was knighted Sept. 4 1630, at Moor Park, by the King (Shaw, vol. II, p. 198 <https://archive.org/stream/knightsofengland02shawuoft#page/n207/mod...>). This is the one who was a Member of Parliament and the Earl of Pembroke's Secretary and all that. Per History of Parliament Online, he was the son of John Thorowgood of Hertfordshire and Jane Wroth (daughter of William Wroth, mercer, of London). This one was not the brother of Adam Thorowgood, since the parents do not match.

A second John Thorowgood was part of a mass knighting of "gentleman pensioners" on July 16, 1633 (at Master James Maxwell's house at Innerwick). (Shaw, p. 201 <https://archive.org/stream/knightsofengland02shawuoft#page/n209/mod...>) This places him in Scotland as part of the royal bodyguard and indicates a good character, a strong military background, and a respectable if not necessarily "noble" family, since commoners could be inducted if they sufficiently distinguished themselves.

Ordinance of King Charles I governing the Yeomen of the Guard, from his personal Household Book:

"To establish government and order in Our Court, which from whence may spread with more honour through all parts of our Kingdoms. We have collected these Articles conformable to the ancient ordinances of Our house, and command them to be duly observed in every point. Above stairs the Yeomen of Our Guard are to attend in Our Great Chamber as hath been accustomed. And because their service importeth not only the safety of Our person, but the honour of Our Court. We ordain that none hereafter be sworn and enrolled of that band that is not of tall personage, strong, active, and of manly presence. And that such, according to Our prerogative, be chosen out of the servants of Our nobilities, or where else they may be found. And that they be freely placed and enjoyed to execute their service in person not be excused by the attendance of extraordinary hired men as sometimes hath been done.

"The Yeomen Ushers and the Yeomen Waiters for the day shall be in the Great Chamber by six or seven of the clock in the morning to discharge the watch. The Usher to command a Yeoman to keep the doore and not to depart from the doore till the next waiter come to relieve him. And he that cometh last to keep it till Our board be taken downe after supper."

"The Yeomen Ushers are to see that the Chamber be kept cleane & sweet; and that they cause the doore to be carefully kept, not suffering any footmen or other meaner persons to enter."

"If there shall happen to disorder or quarrel among any of Our servants in the Great Chamber, the Clarke of the Cheque or the Yeomen Ushers in his absence are to discharge them of their attendance till the cause be heard and punished by the Lord Chamberlain."

"At Meals. The Yeomen of the Guard having brought up Our meate and performed their other services shall presently retire themselves into the Great Chamber."

"The Captain of the Guard to be allowed to attend the Chapel in the Stalles."

The ordinances were concluded by directing that they should be read twice a year at Michaelmas and Shrovetide in the several rooms of the Court.

Note: this is not the same unit that serves as guards at the Tower of London - they are, technically, the Yeomen Warders or Tower Warders.

Thank you for the link Jacqueli. I did not know about the DNA testing to confirm the Francis Constable line. There may be some debate about my distant G Grandmother Sarah Constable being the mother of Alice Savage but the common names seem to solidify it for me. For example, the name Alice was Sarah's mother and sister's name and then Alice Savage named one of her daughters Sarah (after her mother) and another daughter (Ann) I assume after Anne (Alice's aunt) of your Lee line.

Also, I still don't understand how William Constable is Humphrey de Bohun's son since they have different surnames.

john: Apparently it's a mashup from who-knows-where. Had a bit of trouble identifying exactly which Humphrey de Bohun was indicated, there having been so many of that name in a row - turned out to be the 4th Earl of Hereford.

He had a son William, but not surnamed "Constable":

8. William de Bohun, 1st Earl of Northampton (About 1310-1312 –1360). Twin of Edward. Married Elizabeth de Badlesmere, daughter of Bartholomew de Badlesmere, 1st Baron Badlesmere and Margaret de Clare, by whom he had issue.

9. Edward de Bohun (About 1310-1312 –1334). Twin of William. Married Margaret, daughter of William de Ros, 2nd Baron de Ros, but they had no children. He served in his ailing elder brother's stead as Constable of England. He was a close friend of young Edward III, and died a heroic death attempting to rescue a drowning man-at-arms from a Scottish river while on campaign.

Constable of Flamborough goes back much father than the 4th Earl of Hereford, and is attested by charters and other legal records:

Thank you Maven for clarifying. I see that there is some differing opinions on Francis Constable's father. Wiki has the following:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Francis_Constable

Robert II Constable of North Pickenham, Norfolkshire
(c. 1555-bef. 1607)

Your thoughts? Also, on Jacqueli's Ahnentafel I saw that Margery Barker was listed as an adopted child of Christopher Barker. I had not seen that listed before. Is it correct? See below.

Children of Christopher Barker and Rachel Day are:

Margery Barker, born 1570 in Datchet, Buckinghamshire, England; died in England; Adopted child; married Robert Constable 1590.
